30.05.2007

MA Lighting's distributor for India, Reynold's Sound & Lighting Services, recently held training in Bangalore, for the sophisticated and powerful consoles from Germany. The 30 attendees were lighting designers, rental companies, system integrators, theatre personnel, consultants and specifiers from all over India, e.g. from Chennai, Hyderabad, Mumbai, Goa and Bangalore. Their feedback was very positive and enthusiastic. "It was the first time we held training for the MA consoles and we were completely overwhelmed by the huge success. After what I've heard from the participants, grandMA has got a really bright future in India," related Felix Remedios Managing Director of Reynolds.

"The training, organized by Reynold's, was held to meet the growing demands of the Indian market, to bring productions to a higher level and to link with our new office MA Lighting Middle East / India those two booming markets," explained Michael Althaus Managing Director of MA Lighting. grandMA has many dedicated features perfectly integrating latest technologies like LEDs and media servers, that are becoming more and more popular also in India. With its configurable screens and its intuitive way of programming grandMA is the most flexible tool for those demands.

The grandMA product family including MA 2Port Nodes and MA NSPs is now available in different cities of India. A fact that already showed its success. During their gig in Bangalore artists like Bryan Adams and Deep Purple played their show with grandMA. Aerosmith is going to do so too. There is more to come – the next MA training has already been planned.
