Responding to burgeoning market potential in India, Meyer Sound has expanded its distribution network by elevating Bangalore-based Reynold's Sound & Lighting to the role of National Distributor, and by appointing two new dealers to ensure effective sales support for the entire country—Modern Stage Services in New Delhi for Northern and Eastern India, and Mumbai-based Groove Temple Entertainment for the Western Indian sales territory.

"For several years we've been working on a distribution model that would carry out our long-term goals for India, but first we needed to find the best partners to implement that plan. With these appointments, we have the right team, and we will work closely with them to take Meyer Sound to the next level."

A Meyer Sound dealer and user since 2000, Reynold's will continue this role to serve customers in the southern region of India. In addition, the company assumes the responsibilities of a master distributor, providing technical support, product servicing, and coordination of educational programs for the Indian professional audio market.

"For several years we've been working on a distribution model that would carry out our long-term goals for India, but first we needed to find the best partners to implement that plan," comments Mauricio Saint Martin, director of Middle East sales for Meyer Sound. "With these appointments, we have the right team, and we will work closely with them to take Meyer Sound to the next level."

In its eight-year relationship with Meyer Sound, Reynold's Sound & Lighting has supported scores of large-scale concerts and events in India, and has handled installations in prestigious venues using Meyer Sound systems exclusively.

"I'm excited to be part of this milestone for Meyer Sound in India," says Felix Remedios, managing director of Reynold's Sound & Lighting. "Since Meyer Sound products became available in the subcontinent several years ago, we have definitely seen an increase in international acts coming to play because we are now able to provide what they ask for in their tech riders. Working even more closely with Meyer Sound, we look forward to expanding the growth and raising the bar for sound quality across a broad variety of applications in India."
